

Oliver went back to Orlando and informed him about how Ganymede had fainted. He also declared his love for Aliena. He decided to be a shepherd in the forest and said that he would give away his property to Orlando. Orlando suggested that Oliver and Aliena should get married the next day, and both of them went to meet Ganymede and Aliena.

As Oliver went to Aliena to ask for her hand, Orlando told Ganymede that he wished he could be married on the same day to Rosalind. Ganymede said that she could make that possible with her magical powers, which surprised and delighted Orlando.

Oliver, Orlando and Aliena approached the duke the next morning. When Ganymede went to him and asked him whether he would accept the marriage between Orlando and Rosalind, he agreed. Ganymede then asked Orlando whether he was ready to marry Rosalind, and he agreed too. Ganymede and Aliena removed their disguises. Rosalind knelt in front of the duke and asked for his blessings.

Rosalind narrated to the duke how she and Celia had come to the forest. The two couples were married in the forest. As they feasted, a messenger arrived to inform that the duke's dukedom had been restored by Frederick. He was on his way to the forest to kill the duke, but on the way, a hermit had transformed him completely.

There was festivity all around. Celia congratulated Rosalind on the turn of events. The duke returned to his palace with his followers who had not abandoned him during difficult times.
